

PETHERICK, URQUHART AND HUNT

CREATING NATURAL SPACES

Petherick, Urquhart and Hunt came together through a love of plants and nature, and a good friendship. As three independent landscape designers from Somerset and Devon, they became a joint design team, based in a tiny attic room on Broadway, Frome.

With a background in botany, arts and horticulture and a shared passion for the environment Petherick, Urquhart and Hunt are driven by a desire to care for the earth and a love of the natural beauty of the land. "Our sustainable ethos and concern for nature is something we continually work on and weave into our designs. We strive to have a positive impact on people's experience of the natural environment," says partner Lulu Urquhart.

"We have a strong track record of designing and delivering highly desirable outdoor spaces. We attract an eclectic and exciting client base, and are proudly Somerset, even though we work far and wide. We are an unusual mix ourselves with strong design eyes and a passion for horticulture – we never know what planting plan is going to emerge!"

"Last year we completed the landscape at Durslade Farm, Hauser and Wirth Gallery, in Bruton. It has been a huge honour to work with Piet Oudolf, and it was an important project for us. A year on, after the project reached a conclusion, the planting is really beginning to mature and become something very special. If you haven't been to Hauser and Wirth Bruton yet, we really recommend visiting this summer."
